

Northumberland Project

1) Open Areas : Land Status

Target townships and sections shown on the map

Sections with no MLRS results (Active / Filed / Pending):

T13N R45E: Sections 07, 08, 18, 19; T13N R46E: Sections 01, 02, 11, 12, 13

Sections with active claims present but open portions remain:

T13N R45E: Sections 16, 17, 20, 21 (MLRS shows active claims present within these sections; the map highlights the open remainder only)

The “Mining Claims per Section” view can flag a section if any claim exists anywhere in that section. A section may still contain open ground (often specific aliquot parts), which is what is highlighted on the map

2) Map Open Areas and Proposed Staking Blocks

3) Staking Rationale base on location and Geology

Location

Northumberland is located in northern Nye County, central Nevada, within the Toquima Range. The client summary notes the project lies along a north-northeast trending alignment of major deposits in Nye County (including Round Mountain, Manhattan, and Tonopah) and describes historic open pit heap leach mining from 1981 to 1990

Geological reasons the target is attractive

- Mineralization is described as occurring in multiple stratiform deposits that follow three low angle tectonostratigraphic host horizons near the Northumberland anticline
- Ore controls are tied to major structural corridors (Prospect and Mormon thrust systems) and to faultcontrolled horizons including the Basal Chert and Hanson Creek fault horizons.
- The reports describe east trending structural lineaments that influence deposit geometry and high gradedistribution where they interact with favorable stratigraphy
- Panterra documents the basal chert unit of the Roberts Mountains Formation as being exploited by synmineralization faulting along the Basal Chert Fault and as hosting mineralization in past producing deposits; carbonaceous marker horizons are described as preferred horizons for mineralized faults and associated jasperoid alteration

Proximity to existing Newmont footprint

The client summary notes Northumberland and the surrounding land package were acquired by Newmont in February 2011 and that follow up work included drilling and underground evaluation. The open ground identified for staking is positioned as an extension play adjacent to the established Northumberland footprint, while avoiding known patented or encumbered areas to the extent practical

Practical takeaway

The rationale for staking is to secure currently available ground that overlaps favorable host stratigraphy and structural corridors documented at Northumberland, while remaining adjacent to an established project footprint. Land status screening (MLRS, patents, and county parcels) was applied to reduce exposure to active claims and private or patented land
